Say cheese!

WODONGA residents have been asked what they value about Willow Park and what they think it should look like into the future.

The Friends of Willow Park and Wodonga Council are working together to engage the community in discussions around a shared vision for the park.

Information gathered at a "Play and Say

Day" last weekend will be used to develop a masterplan for the park.

"The Play and Say Day will help us to gather vital information about what people already love about Willow Park, how the community are currently using it and any changes they want for the future," sustainable development director Johan Louw said.
